Council Gives Go-Ahead for Ora Glen Light, Considers Other Traffic Problems

by Sandy Smith

At its February 25 meeting, Greenbelt's City Council unanimously approved the installation of a traffic light at Hanover Parkway and Ora Glen Drive. With immediate action to begin the bid process, the light could be in place by July. The traffic light would ultimately be paid for by Commerce Center II, since the results of a study show traffic volume at a level to require the office building developer to reimburse the city for this traffic signal. Issues of pedestrian and traffic safety, primarily in Greenbelt East, occupied council during the remainder of this brief council meeting.

Traffic Signal

A three-phase traffic light will be installed at Hanover Parkway and Ora Glen Drive (Greenway Center Drive). The traffic signal, long sought by Greenbelt East residents, will have three phases: green on southbound Hanover Parkway with green left arrow, through green on Hanover Parkway (with no arrow), and red on Hanover Parkway with green on Ora Glen (Greenway Center Drive) with no arrows. Citizens at the meeting thanked city council for taking action to improve this heavily travelled intersection.

City Director of Planning and Development Celia Wilson described the results of a traffic survey which had been conducted for three evenings. The survey showed traffic volume about 30 percent higher than anticipated by the developers of Commerce Center II, high enough to bring into effect a clause requiring the developer to pay for installation of a traffic signal at this intersection. Two additional days of monitoring showed the same high level of traffic, thus completing the five-day survey required for this clause to take effect, Wilson told the News Review. She also said that the city was now negotiating with the Commerce Center II developer to determine the schedule for reimbursing the city.

Traffic Safety

Council member Antoinette M. Bram again raised the issue of speed limit enforcement on Greenbelt Road. This issue had been addressed at February 12 work session on Greenbelt East traffic problems. At that meeting, Police Chief James Craze indicated several problems with enforcing the speed limit near Eleanor Roosevelt High School. The lack of a shoulder along Greenbelt Road makes traffic stops dangerous for motorists and police, Chief Craze explained. Council explored several other options, such as the placement of a police car off Greenbelt

Road but visible to Greenbelt Road drivers, as a deterrent to speeding. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld suggested that citizens write letters to support a lower speed limit near the school. This issue will be followed up with Greenbelt Police at a work session on March 5.

Council members and citizens at the meeting identified a number of other areas needing improved road markings. Council member Edward Putens mentioned the area where Hanover Parkway narrows from three to two lanes to one lane. Council member Thomas X. White raised the issue of pedestrian safety at Gardenway and Crescent Road. City Manager James Giese said the city had no recommendation on action for this location at this time but that one option would be installation of a four-way stop sign. White asked that this topic be placed on a future council agenda.

Greenbelt Volksmarchers

Lee Struglia represented the Greenbelt Volksmarchers, who were seeking recognition as an official city-sponsored organization. She cited the organization's need to meet in the Youth Center and opportunities to cooperate with the Recreation Department in sponsoring walks and other events. She said that the organization had begun meeting in the Youth Center and had received help from the Recreation Department staff.

Mayor Weidenfeld said that there was no category of "official Greenbelt organization" and that the city in its various departments regularly worked with community and citizen groups to assist them and to cooperate wherever possible. He said no official designation was necessary to request meeting space in city facilities and that he expected the cooperative activities which had been initiated to continue. Putens said that he had received some citizen inquiries about "official" organization status and that perhaps that issue needed to be clarified.

Lakewood Drainage Study

Council unanimously authorized an agreement, not to exceed $12,000, with Botts & Associates to prepare the Lakewood Drainage Study, with the understanding that Botts would not conduct the study until an agreement for reimbursement is signed by the county. Early last year the county agreed to fund an engineering study to identify those homes in the Lakewood Subdivision suffering from stormwater-related flooding, to develop recommendations for relieving the flooding conditions, and to prioritize homes based on the severity of the flooding. The county agreed to reimburse the city for the cost of these services. Botts & Associates was selected in September to complete the study. Since that time, city staff have been working with the county to prepare an agreement for the employment of Botts & Associates; that agreement is nearing completion.

Program Open Space Request

City Council agreed to submit a request of $835,000 for the county's FY 1992 Program Open Space, in part to demonstrate the high demand for this program and this level of funding. City officials consider highly unlikely that an award of this magnitude would be made. Last year the city received $63,250.

Funds for Reconstruction Of Center Parking Lot

Greenbelt is one of 19 Prince Georges County communities that will receive Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds during the coming year, according to a press release from County Executive Parris Glendening. The county expects to receive approximately $5,132,000 in CDBG funds that are earmarked for public improvements.

Greenbelt will receive $120,000 to be used for reconstruction of a portion of the Roosevelt Center parking lot, the second phase of redevelopment of the Center area.

CERTIFICATE AWARDED

The Committee to Save the Green Belt was awarded a Certificate of Appreciation from the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin for its outstanding contributions to the restoration of the Anacostia River. The certificate was accepted by Rodney Roberts on February 21 at a meeting held at the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission building.

Greenbelt Author Writes A Biographical Novel

by Sandra Barnes

Although she had long been interested in writing, and had taken a few evening writing courses, it wasn't until Hilda Orleans retired from the federal government in 1973 that she pursued her dream. During much of the next seventeen years she worked on her biographical novel, Lottie's Legacy. Writing in long hand, transcribing her work onto her typewriter, she labored in the sunny bedroom of her honeymoon cottage on Eastway. It was definitely a labor of love for this 70-plus, small, white-haired, vivacious lady.

Hilda Orleans has lived in Greenbelt since 1943. As she tells it, she was working for the Veterans Administration where she met Greenbelt's mayor, Allan Morrison. He said, "Hilda, you need to get out to Greenbelt. I'll get you an application (to apply for what was then government-owned housing) and you can ride in my carpool."

When her husband returned from serving in World War II, the family moved from their small apartment to a three-bedroom home on Westway. She and her husband raised two children, Carol Ann and William. Now a widow, Hilda enjoys her comfortable home and her energetic lifestyle.

Lottie's Legacy is her first book and she points with pride at her accomplishment as not only noteworthy in its own right, but also as a model for other senior citizens like herself. She enjoys attending writer's workshops and conferences at local colleges and universities. She is active as a member of the editorial board of The Senior Times, a publication of the Department of Aging, and occasionally teaches a writing class for OASIS, Older Adult Service and Information System. She embodies her favorite quotation, "Imagining the successful completion of a personal or professional goal improves the likelihood of its attainment."

Hilda's tenacity in seeking to get her book published when she was turned down by New York publishers ("not enough sex," she sneers) is evidenced by her finding Bartleby Press in Silver Spring. When her first editor had personal problems and could not complete the job, she sought the professional assistance of the editor of the Oregonian magazine of whom she had heard but never met. When the book was not going to be published in time for Christmas this past year as she had expected, she persuaded the publisher to print just the book jacket so she could give it as a surprise present to her family. And, when the publisher declined to print a full-color photo of her mother for the cover, she paid for the processing herself.

Having achieved her goal, Hilda does not think she will write another book. She enjoys smaller writing projects, and in 1988 was the Prince Georges County winner of Maryland's first essay contest on "Why Maryland is Beautiful to Me." She also belongs to Washington Independent Writers group. These days, she is very busy attending book fairs and other parties to promote her book. The book is called Lottie's Legacy—Hilda's dream realized.

RSVP Volunteers Help In Conflict Resolution

The Prince Georges County Human Relations Commission has established a special service for citizens needing assistance in cases involving conflicts. Because the county is a racially, ethnically, and culturally diverse community with a growing population and people of all backgrounds living in closer and closer proximity to one another, conflict of all kinds is happening in many neighborhoods.

Through the Community Mediation Board conflict resolution is offered by trained volunteers. The Community Mediation Board accepts all referrals. They come from the county police, social service agencies and people in the community. Some cases are referred by the District Court if they can be more effectively dealt with by resolving problems rather than assessing guilt.

The Community Mediation Board's services are free. The hours are flexible to encourage those who can't miss work. The locations are convenient.

Before this program went into effect, people arguing with neighbors, friends or co-workers had no real alternative to the traditional court system, which is cumbersome, expensive and time consuming. The District Court is already overburdened and an inefficient drain on the overloaded police department.

In 1989 the Human Relations Commission contacted the Prince Georges County Department of Aging, Retired Senior Volunteer Program to train 25 volunteers of the Department of Aging's Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) in mediation work as well as a full day of cross cultural communication and sensitivity.

The Human Relations Commission is responsible for coordination of the Board, reviewing all requests for information, contacting the parties for case preparation information, setting up the mediation conferences and assigning clients to mediators. Additionally, the staff oversees many of the conferences to provide advanced mediation skills in case a particularly complicated situation arises.

Conferences are held principally in neighborhood libraries, providing a warm and friendly atmosphere. Mediation offers a positive outcome to a negative situation. Both parties "win". Most mediation ends when the parties involved sign an agreement detailing a change in behaviors. The mediator provides continued support by continuing to call clients and assess the progress of the situation. If additional conferences or follow up are needed they are provided. If during the conference it comes to the attention of the mediators that additional services are required by participants, appropriate referrals are made in a supportive, non-accusatory way.

The Human Relations Commission provides all training and other support, such as clerical staff and supplies, such as forms and badges. A volunteer administers the program.

Noisy neighbors, barking dogs, trespassing children, blocked driveways, family feuds, littering, loitering, neighborhood property neglect, property defacement, and such things as small claims matters are among the conflicts mediated.

To obtain assistance, call or write the Prince Georges County Human Relations Commission and provide a brief overview of the problem. The Commission's address is 9201 Basil Court, Landover, Md., 20785. To telephone, call (301) 925-5070. TDD 925-5167. FAX 925-5359.

The Nicest People

I have enjoyed your News Review for many years, but have never written to you before; but now I would like to use this method to thank some kind people who have helped me through the saddest and most difficult time of my life. I am a senior citizen, resident of Greenbelt since December 30, 1959.

First, I want to acknowledge the nicest group of people I have met anywhere, and that is the personnel at the Co-op grocery store. They are always busy, but never too busy for a pleasant chat, a kind word, or assistance of any kind. They are always courteous and friendly, and that applies to all age groups.

Next, my thanks to the lovely Lakewood couple who invited me to have dinner with them recently. I will always appreciate your kindness, at a time when I needed a morale booster.

Last, but not least, my kudos to "Professor Corey" who regaled another lady and me at the Co-op with the most hilarious comedy routine I have ever heard. He is far better than some of our best comedians. Please give little Oscar a gentle pat on the head for me too, "Professor." You made my day!

Thank you, News Review, for your many years of hard work and information.

Fire Put Out

Members of the Committee to Save the Green Belt discovered a small forest fire in the "72-acre parcel" during their regularly scheduled tour of the Green Belt on March 2. It is not known whether the fire started naturally or was man-made; it is known that the fire began between Friday morning and Saturday morning. The fire burned leaves on the forest floor over an area 60 to 80 feet in diameter.

Though most of the fire had extinguished itself when discovered by the committee, one tree was burning steadily. Committee members doused this fire with stream water. Bob Rashkin noted that "While the committee generally believes that the forest can take care of itself, the Green Belt is too small and too close to residences to let fire go unchecked."

THANKS

The family of Daniel "Randy" Crabill wishes to thank the neighbors of 34 Court Ridge Road for the many kindnesses shown to them and Randy during his illness.

The Crabill Family Why So Many Ballfields?

In all the letters, pro and con, concerning the Ballfield Complex I never saw a reason given for so many new fields. Why are they wanted? (I can't say needed.) There are so many less children in Greenbelt now than there were 20-30 years ago. How many fields do the ever-increasing number of Senior Citizens need?

If there is an actual need for more fields they should be built in the various parts of the City—not all in one out-of-the-way place where it will necessitate removing trees. Now, if they are to benefit the County, let the County build them throughout the County where they are needed.

Tips for Taxpayers

Maryland taxpayers should provide their proper subdivision code on their state tax returns to ensure that their local government will receive its proper share of local income tax revenues. Greenbelt's subdivision code is 1714.

Another Maryland income tax provision causing frequent questions involves parents of children with unearned income. Parents who use their income tax return to report up to $5,000 in unearned income from interest and dividends for a child may subtract that income on their Maryland return, according to Maryland tax officials.

Maryland taxpayers who work in Washington, D.C. should be certain that Maryland tax is withheld from their pay and file their tax returns with Maryland. Those who had D.C. tax withheld by mistake should file for a refund of those taxes and also file a resident return with Maryland. To get the proper tax withheld in 1991, these taxpayers should file a corrected W-4 form with their employers.

TOASTMASTERS TO MEET

Comer Addresses Awards Assembly

More than 100 Greenbelt Middle School seventh and eighth grade students were honored for high academic achievements at an awards assembly on February 15. Dr. James P. Comer, Director of the School Development Program and the Child Study Center at Yale University, was the keynote speaker.

Dr. Comer has developed a process, used by many schools including Greenbelt Middle, to encourage school improvement by recognizing that the major purpose of schooling is to advance the social, emotional, and academic growth and development of students and to produce successful citizens.

In addressing the students, he spoke of his days in school when there was a pressure to excel. He now sees among students pressure against excellence. If a student studies hard and gets good grades, he or she is often laughed at, not rewarded by friends. Each student has to care and work very hard, he said. They have to realize that getting through high school, and college when possible, is the most important thing in life.

Dr. Comer is concerned about students who feel that their future lies in sports, singing, or dancing. Although very visible, few students actually succeed through these endeavors. Yet education and discipline in life will almost always assure success. He encouraged the students to always keep their goals in mind.

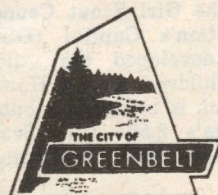

After the presentation, each student was presented with a certificate of excellence and a congratulatory handshake from Mrs. Gresham, principal. Parents and students then celebrated at a small reception of punch and cookies.

A Book Review

"LOTTIE'S LEGACY" IS VERY READABLE BOOK

by Sandra Barnes

Every family's life is filled with births and deaths, marriages, illnesses, joys and disasters. Most often, we remember the stories of our family's lives as vignettes which we verbally pass on from generation to generation. Greenbelt author Hilda Orleans has composed vignettes about her family in a slim biographical novel entitled Lottie's Legacy.

Lottie is Hilda's mother. The story Hilda relates centers primarily on Lottie's marriage to Alex, "a charming rogue," as Hilda calls her father. In 1907 Lottie, a southern lady growing up in Portsmouth, Va., meets the man of her dreams, Alex, a Yankee from New York, sweeps Lottie off her feet. In spite of her mother's prediction that "If you marry Alex, you're walking into the face of doom," Lottie does just that. Since the warning occurs on the first page, the remainder of the book describes how Lottie copes with her precarious life with Alex.

Alex is a compulsive gambler who, from time to time, deserts his wife and three children leaving them very little money to support themselves while he pursues his dream at the racetrack. Eventually he sends for his family in whatever city he happens to be. To the dismay of her sister and parents, Lottie follows, feeling that a part-time husband and father is better than none.

MONTPELIER ARTS CENTER HOLDS JURIED SHOW

The Montpelier Cultural Arts Center announces the 1991 Laurel Art Guild Juried Show. It will be on display in the Main Gallery from March 6 through March 26, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. seven days a week. A reception and awards ceremony will be held on March 10 from 2-4 p.m.

The Montpelier Cultural Arts Center is a facility of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Department of Parks and Recreation, Prince Georges County Arts Division. The Montpelier Cultural Arts Center may be reached by calling (301) 953-1993 (D.C.), (301) 792-0664, TDD 490-2329.

Told almost exclusively from Lottie's point of view, we learn little of what drives Alex in his sometimes erratic behavior. The reader's sympathies are entirely with Lottie as she struggles to raise her children, to provide stability in what she views as her turbulent world.

We are impressed with Lottie's strength of character, her perseverance in urging Alex to build a house and establish roots after more than 20 years of wanderlust. The values she imparts to her children undoubtedly have a strong effect on Lottie's middle child, Hilda.

Lottie's Legacy is a tribute to Hilda's mother and the story is written with gentleness and respect for that lady's virtues. It is a very readable book.

Guide for Children And Stress of War

To help the more than 35,000 Girl Scouts in the Washington metropolitan area cope with the stresses caused by the war in the Gulf, the Girl Scout Council of the Nation's Capital (GSCNC) has developed the guide, "Helping Children on the Homefront," which is being distributed to the area's 2,564 Girl Scout troop leaders and other volunteers.

Created to aid girls who have either been affected by the media coverage of the war or who have parents or close friends in the Middle East, the guide alerts leaders to the warning signals of war-related stress in children. It also offers ways to help youngsters cope with the intensity of their feelings.

The guide is available through the Girl Scout Council, 2233 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007.

7th Graders to Get Free Immunization

During the first three weeks of March the Prince Georges County Health Department will be immunizing the county's 7th graders against measles, mumps and rubella (German measles) without charge.

Following guidelines from the American Academy of Pediatrics, a second dose of this vaccine has been recommended to reduce the alarming numbers of measles epidemics nationwide among school age children.

A first dose of vaccine should be administered at 15 months of age and is required prior to school entry. The second or booster dose will provide added protection against a disease which can cause severe pneumonia, encephalitis, and even death.

In 1990 there were 36 confirmed cases of measles in Prince Georges County, the highest seen here since 1985. The number of mumps cases has also increased in 1990, 289 up from 243 in 1989.

For further information contact Dr. Elin Gursky, Director of Epidemiology, 386-0142.

Eleanor Roosevelt High School student Steven Granite, is collecting six million pennies in memory of those Jews who perished in the Holocaust. Steven says he is using this project not only as a fundraiser for the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum scheduled to open in 1993, but also as an educational device to demonstrate the enormity of the numbers.

Anyone wishing to help, please bring pennies to Dr. David Granite's office located in the Greenbelt Professional Building 115 Centerway.

Dumping at Hamilton Fill Site, Fences, Sheds Concern GHI

by Betty Timer

The Hamilton Place fill site, fencing exemptions, North End encroachments and shed regulations were topics of discussion at the Feb. 14, Greenbelt Homes Incorporated (GHI) Board of Directors meeting.

Dump Site

Each board meeting includes an opportunity for petitions from GHI members. Rodney Roberts asked that GHI halt further dumping behind Hamilton Place and consider the safety ramifications of the steep incline on the site. "You're filling the woods with rubble and I'm here on behalf of the trees," stated Roberts, who then asked if "the dump" was in compliance with county codes. Manager Ron Colton responded that, in GHI history, no permit had ever been required.

Recent grading behind Hamilton Place was required to insure that a recent fire had been put out. He stated that GHI uses this site as a fill for tree stumps and broken concrete. Roberts took exception to this statement, noting that he saw old bathroom fixtures and oil tanks also in the dump. Colton said that if this was true, it was because people illegally enter on weekends and dump on the site.

The manager then said that because of the recent fire, the county has put a stop order on any future activity in the area for the next 30 days. GHI has solicited engineering services regarding this issue. The board asked its manager to give them an update as a future agenda item.

Fencing

Requests for fencing exemptions met with limited success. One recently constructed fence was both too high and improperly styled. After much discussion, the board granted a 2-inch variance on height but requested that the member change the style from solid fencing to "board on board," which complies with regulations. A second member wanted to keep a privacy fence that was on his property when he bought his unit. The previous owner had been told before settlement that the fence was not in compliance and would have to be removed. The board denied this request.

City Issues

The GHI staff met with the School Board staff to discuss the encroachments onto the North End school site. The school board remained unwilling to trade an easement for the preservation of two existing yard lines in 11 Court Laurel Hill. GHI assured one of the homeowners that the corporation will assist in moving plantings and fencing at the proper time.

The board also reviewed proposed improvements to Buddy Attick Park. A letter will be drafted including remarks to be sent to the City for inclusion in its record of the public hearing on the park.

The board proposed a hard surface access path from the parking lot to the trail to provide access for the handicapped and improvements to the trail to prevent erosion and improve drainage. The board opposed paving the trail. The board also recommended improvements to landscaping, signage and the trail system and the installation of additional benches.

Regulations

The board also reviewed revisions to shed regulations. The goal of the revision is to improve the appearance of the individual sheds and of the overall neighborhood. The Architecture and Environment (A&E), Committee encourages members to construct wooden sheds rather than metal ones. Specific approval is required before a shed can be constructed. Any member planning to add a shed should contact GHI for information including relevant building codes. The member will also receive plans and information where kits or completely assembled sheds can be purchased.

Without discussion, the board approved motion that revised and restated rules and regulations concerning exterior painting.

Volunteer Drivers Needed

Volunteer drivers are needed to assist persons with handicaps to medical and other appointments one morning a month. A valid Maryland driver's license is required, and volunteers will be reimbursed for mileage. Interested persons may call 779-9444.

Tour the Green Belt

Tours of the 'Green Belt', sponsored by the Committee to Save the Green Belt, will be held each Saturday at noon. Meet at the playground at the end of Gardenway. Refreshments will be provided. For information, call 474-4863.

Volunteers Needed

The Prince Georges County Parks and Recreation Foundation, Inc. needs volunteers to help with its many projects and programs.

A private, non-profit, charitable organization, the Foundation's mission is to enhance the quality of life for all of the county's citizens. Funds are raised to support parks, recreation, conservation, education and cultural activities and programs. Grants are given to programs serving disabled youths, senior citizens, sports and recreation activities for youngsters and adults and for the collection of food for the needy.

Anyone interested in volunteering should call Permilia Addison (301) 464-6706. The Foundation is sponsored by the M-NCPPC, County Department of Parks and Recreation.

Learn How to Plant Trees

To build on the momentum created by the national celebration of Earth Day 1990, Governor William Donald Schaefer announced his plans to designate April 1991 as "Tree-Mendous Earth Month" and invited Maryland citizens to help plant trees across the state.

Marylanders can learn how to plant trees by attending one of six regional tree planting supervisor workshops sponsored by the Department of Natural Resources.

The closest tree planting workshop to Greenbelt will be held on March 9 at Bowie High School from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Citizens need only attend one workshop and can register by calling 974-3776.

Once trained, citizens will be qualified to act as tree planting supervisors and are encouraged to plant trees during the month of April for Maryland's Tree-mendous Earth Month Celebration. Governor William Donald Schaefer has challenged all counties to help him plant one million more trees this year.

For a copy of a brochure about how groups, schools, businesses, farmers, individuals, and government agencies can organize a tree planting for Earth Day, call 301-974-5300.

State Tax Help

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said 540,000 taxpayers have already filed their 1990 state income tax returns. He reminded those still working on their returns to be sure to use the correct code for their subdivision on the front of their return. "Using the right code guarantees your local government will receive its proper share of more than $1.4 billion in local income tax revenue," he said. "Many folks entered the code for 'their county instead of for their incorporated town.'"

A full list of the codes is featured on page 2 of the instructions in the tax packet.

Comptroller Goldstein said his office has mailed 151,000 state income tax refund checks to taxpayers so far during the filing season, averaging $280 each. He noted that more than 7,690 taxpayers have contributed $69,387 to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Trust Fund on their Maryland returns.

Taxpayers can get free state income tax assistance at all 15 Maryland income tax offices. They are open Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.,

Mikulski Given Award By Mayors' Conference

U.S. Senator Barbara A. Mikulski of Maryland has been awarded the 1990 Community Development Leadership Award by the U.S. Conference of Mayors for her "outstanding support" of the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program, which directs funds toward improving low and moderate income neighborhoods across the country. Mikulski is the first person ever to receive this award.

Mikulski, as chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee that oversees spending for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), succeeded in getting funding increases for HUD in 1991 and played a key role in building support for the CDBG program this past year.

including all state holidays and certain weekends between now and the filing deadline, Monday, April 15.

State tax experts will complete your Maryland return free of charge as long as you bring a completed copy of your federal return and all W-2 statements.

EPA Honors Plant Designed by G&O

The Frederick Wastewater Treatment Plant was recently honored by the EPA as the most improved municipal wastewater treatment plant in the mid-Atlantic region for 1990. The facility was designed by Greenhorne & O'Mara, Inc., a Greenbelt engineering firm. Discharging only half of the allowable pollutants, the facility is now considered a model for the treatment of wastewater.

"This project was quite a challenge," said Gary Beach, G&O Division Manager for Water Resources. "We put together a G&O project team, consisting of architectural, environmental, civil and structural engineers which worked closely with the city's project manager. We obtained approval to use an innovative technology in designing a system that is now performing in an outstanding manner."

The use of innovative technology for any project is a risk, and requires a commitment from both the designers and the operators. "We were pleased with the system that G&O designed," said Robert L. Strine, Frederick Director of Public Works. "There is a measure of risk associated with new, untried technology, but this facility is living up to its expectations and more."

Ray Schulte, G&O Department Head of Environmental Engineering said, "Basic hard work and a cooperative effort with the city's project manager helped us overcome many problems. We designed an excellent facility and with proper management and operation by the City of Frederick the facility functions very effectively. I am pleased that G&O could contribute to the success of this facility and, consequently, to the improvement of our Maryland environment."

Greenhorne & O'Mara, Inc. provides services in engineering, science, planning, architecture, surveying and photogrammetry.

GHI Tries New Approach To Solve Soil Problems

by Leslie Robinson

At a cost estimated at about $25,000, Greenbelt Homes Inc. (GHI) recently contracted with a soils modification company to stabilize the clay subsoil beneath the foundation of 16 E-K Ridge Road. According to Jay Freedman, Director of Technical Services for GHI, stabilization was necessary to halt the spread of stress cracks in the cinder block walls.

Stress cracks in this building are caused by the shrinking and swelling of the clay subsoils beneath the foundation. In this region, underlying clay soils dry out and shrink in the summer. They swell in the spring when moisture levels in the soils are at their highest. GHI has dealt with this problem in other locations in a variety of ways. These include grading lawns to establish better drainage, and digging around foundations and putting in drainage pipes. Recently GHI has put in expansion joints to accommodate the strains in exterior walls caused by the swelling and shrinkage of clays under one structure.

The row of six attached houses in the 16 E-K Court became a concern to GHI because the stress cracks were spreading. In November 1990, GHI contracted the services of the Woodbine Division of Hayward Baker, Inc., a nationwide specialist in ground modification. Because the Woodbine Division, which is located in Texas, had recently completed a soil modification project in this area, the company agreed to waive a set-up cost. This saved GHI an estimated $20,000. Nick Syriopoulos, spokesman for the Woodbine Division, said his company had 20 years experience, mostly in treating problem soils that fail compaction tests before construction begins.

The Woodbine tractor really tore up the lawns around the 16 E-K Court, but it was all over in about three days—one day to set up, one day to inject a curtain wall around the foundation, and one day to pack up and leave. The curtain wall was put in by three mechanics using a rubber-tired Liftmaster tractor with pipe injectors mounted on a fork lift. They pumped a slurry of fly ash (a coal burning byproduct) and lime (slaked quicklime) to a depth of 10 feet at pressures ranging from 50 to 200 pounds per square inch. This created a network of cementitious seams to increase soil strength and to retard the movement of underground moisture.

Since then GHI has begun to repair the damage created by the operation. Soon it will be difficult to tell that three Texas mechanics and their machine had ever been there. GHI will monitor any further movement of the foundation.

In another soil stabilizing job for the 6 F-J Court of Hillside Road, GHI contracted a company to encircle the foundation with drains. The building appears stabilized, but residents will never forget that it took all summer and there was a continual mess.

More recently in the 17 A-F Court of Ridge Road, GHI put in expansion joints in the building to accommodate the movement of underlying clays. At

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello Again!

Fluids — there are all kinds which do different things. There are so many that you can be confused by what does what and which fluid needs to be serviced in your regular preventive maintenance servicing schedule. Everyone knows about the engine oil and filter combination, and most are aware of the transaxle and transmission filter combination, but within the last few years we saw the introduction of high pressure steering controls, commonly referred to as rack and pinion steering. There is fluid in these systems which uses designed power steering fluid not ATF like in the past. On some models there is a filter assembly located in the low pressure return side of the system that needs to be serviced every year or so to maintain longevity for the system. This is something to consider for the long run when you schedule your next preventive maintenance.

Another area that is forgotten is the rear differential area. Most of today's vehicles are front wheel drive and don't use rear differential, but there are still a ton of rear wheel driven autos left. These applications use a heavy gear lubricant. This oil is much heavier and thicker than conventional oils due to the job that is required of this lubricant. It has to maintain its viscosity because it lubricates two heavy gear assemblies and also assorted bearing assemblies. For this reason this fluid must be serviced at least once a year. There is no filter in these applications so it's very important not to forget about this area. If you ever had to repair one you would understand just how important this servicing is. It's like anything else if you neglect it, it won't last.

Preventive maintenance costs money initially, but it's been proven that it saves you in the long run. No question!

TILL NEXT TIME

"Pre-Spring" Exhaust Infra-Red Test"

Good for the entire month of March. Know exactly what the HC Hydro-carbon and CO %, Carbon Monoxide and CO2 Carbon Dioxide levels are, especially if your vehicle is scheduled for the state emission test this spring. Better yet, just the peace of mind knowing how much fuel is being consumed or actually wasted. If you're interested call for a scheduled appointment. You will receive a computerized print of your exhaust levels and any recommendation for a cleaner level.
